

Introduction – William Shakespeare

1. William Shakespeare: Lifespan, Birth/Death Details, Nationality, Era

- Full Name: William Shakespeare
- Born: April 23, 1564 (baptized April 26, 1564), Stratford-upon-Avon, England
- Died: April 23, 1616, Stratford-upon-Avon, England
- Nationality: English
- Era: English Renaissance; primarily the Elizabethan (1558–1603) and Jacobean (1603–1625) periods

2. Contemporaries with Details

- Christopher Marlowe (1564–1593): A major influence on Shakespeare's early work; known for "Doctor Faustus" and blank verse innovation.
- Ben Jonson (1572–1637): Celebrated playwright; both praised and critiqued Shakespeare. Called him the "Soul of the Age."
- Thomas Kyd (1558–1594): Wrote "The Spanish Tragedy," an early influence on Elizabethan revenge tragedy.
- John Webster (1580–1634): Famous for dark Jacobean tragedies like "The Duchess of Malfi."
- Edmund Spenser (1552–1599): Author of "The Faerie Queene," his poetic style influenced Shakespeare.
- Francis Bacon (1561–1626): Philosopher and essayist; often falsely linked to Shakespeare's authorship.

3. Titles (All Known As) – Awards

- Known As: The Bard of Avon, England's National Poet, Swan of Avon
- Awards: No formal awards in his time. Received royal patronage (The King's Men under James I).

4. Key Themes in His Works

- Love and Passion ("Romeo and Juliet")

- Ambition and Power ("Macbeth")
- Betrayal and Revenge ("Hamlet")
- Madness and Identity ("King Lear")
- Comic Disguise and Social Order ("Twelfth Night")
- Fate and Free Will ("Julius Caesar")

5. Family Background

- Father: John Shakespeare – glove-maker and alderman
- Mother: Mary Arden – from a prominent landowning family
- Wife: Anne Hathaway (married in 1582)
- Children: Susanna, and twins Hamnet (died at 11) and Judith

6. Education

- Likely attended King's New School in Stratford-upon-Avon
- Studied Latin grammar, rhetoric, logic, and classical literature
- No record of university education

7. Important Life Events with Descriptions

- 1582: Marries Anne Hathaway at 18; she was 26 and pregnant.
- 1585–1592: The "Lost Years" – no documented activity; possibly worked in London theatre.
- 1592: First critical mention by Robert Greene ("upstart crow").
- 1594: Became member of Lord Chamberlain's Men theatre company.
- 1599: Globe Theatre built, partly owned by Shakespeare.
- 1603: Company renamed the King's Men under royal patronage.
- 1611: Retired to Stratford.
- The Globe Theatre burned down in 1613; rebuilt in 1614.
- Collaborated with other playwrights, including Marlowe and Fletcher.
- 1616: Died and was buried at Holy Trinity Church.

8. Impact and Legacy

- Introduced 1,700+ words to the English language.
- First Folio (1623) preserved 36 plays.
- Deep influence on drama, poetry, language, and global culture.
- His works are most performed and translated in the world.

9. Criticism: Him to Others and Others to Him

- Shakespeare on Others:
  - Mocked stale theatrical tropes in "Hamlet" (e.g., overacted drama in the Players' scenes).
  - In "Love's Labour's lost," parodied poetic affectations of contemporary courtly love writers.
- Others on Shakespeare:
  - Robert Greene (1592): Called him an "upstart crow" in a jealous rant against non-university-educated playwrights.
  - Ben Jonson: Said, "He was not of an age, but for all time." But also noted Shakespeare "wanted art," i.e., lacked classical polish.
  - Voltaire: Praised Shakespeare initially, but later denounced him as a barbarian genius who violated rules of drama.
  - Leo Tolstoy: Denounced Shakespeare as lacking real depth or moral vision, especially critical of "King Lear."
  - T.S. Eliot: Described "Hamlet" as an artistic failure, saying Shakespeare's emotion outweighed dramatic justification.
  - George Bernard Shaw: Coined the term "bardolatry" to criticize excessive reverence for Shakespeare.
  - Harold Bloom: Called him "the inventor of the human," praising the psychological complexity of his characters.
  - Modern Critics: Often view his works through lenses of feminism, post-colonialism, Marxism, and psychoanalysis.
  - Oxfordian/Baconian Theorists: Claimed Shakespeare was a front for more educated elites like Francis Bacon or Edward de Vere, 17th Earl of Oxford.

10. One of His Most Famous Poem Lines

"Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?" – Sonnet 18

11. All Works of Shakespeare – Chronologically with Year and Detail with Poem Counts

- The Two Noble Kinsmen (1613, co-written with Fletcher)

Poems and Sonnets

- Venus and Adonis (1593)
- The Rape of Lucrece (1594)
- Sonnets (154 total, published in 1609) – Dedicated to "Mr. W.H.," whose identity remains debated. Possible candidates include Henry Wriothesley, 3rd Earl of Southampton (a known patron of Shakespeare), and William Herbert, 3rd Earl of Pembroke.
- The Phoenix and the Turtle (1601)

William Shakespeare's Sonnets (Total: 154)

- Published: 1609
- Title Page: "SHAKE-SPEARES SONNETS. Never before Imprinted."
- Published by Thomas Thorpe (T.T.).
- Dedication: "To the only begetter of these ensuing sonnets Mr. W.H., all happiness and that eternity promised by our ever-living poet..." – T.T.

This mysterious dedication has fuelled centuries of speculation.

The Mystery of "Mr. W.H."

Scholars propose two main candidates:

1. Henry Wriothesley, 3rd Earl of Southampton
  - A known patron of Shakespeare.
  - Also the dedicatee of Venus and Adonis (1593) and The Rape of Lucrece (1594).
2. William Herbert, 3rd Earl of Pembroke
  - Another literary patron, and possible real "W.H."
  - Some argue he fits better with the initials.

Other wild theories?

- "W.H." is a misprint or reversal of "H.W."
- "Mr. W.H." is a fictional or symbolic figure
- The publisher T.T. (Thorpe) used a cipher.

Breakdown of the 154 Sonnets:

Sonnets	Themes/Subject Matter
1–17	Procreation Sonnets – urging a young man to marry and have children.
18–126	Fair Youth Sonnets – expressing affection and complex emotions towards a beautiful young man.
127–152	Dark Lady Sonnets – about a mysterious, seductive woman with morally ambiguous traits.
153–154	Cupid Sonnets – mythological tone, about love's power and weakness. Possibly adapted from Greek poems.

Exam Pointers &amp; Literary Nuggets:

- Sonnet 18 – "Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?" – One of the most iconic.
- Sonnet 29 – "When in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes..." – about despair and hope.
- Sonnet 73 – Explores aging and the passage of time.
- Sonnet 116 – "Let me not to the marriage of true minds..." – definition of true love.
- Sonnet 130 – "My mistress' eyes are nothing like the sun..." – satire of conventional beauty standards.

Form &amp; Structure:

- Shakespearean Sonnet Form
  - 14 lines
  - ABAB CDCD EFEF GG rhyme scheme
  - Written in iambic pentameter

12. Additional Notes

Grave Description: William Shakespeare is buried at Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-upon-Avon. His grave is marked by a simple stone slab embedded in the church floor, bearing an epitaph that reads:

"Good friend for Jesus' sake forbear, to dig the dust enclosed here; Blest be the man that spares these stones, and curst be he that moves my bones." This warning curse has famously protected his grave from being disturbed for centuries, lending it an air of mystery and reverence.

13. Renowned Author Status

Topic – The Tempest

VVIP – KEY POINTS

The title symbolizes the literal storm that opens the play and the metaphorical storm of revenge, reconciliation, and power that unfolds. The tempest represents chaos, upheaval, and transformation—both external (the shipwreck) and internal (character development).

Genre:

Drama / Play (Comedy with Romance and Tragic Elements)

It is traditionally classified as a Romance, though it contains elements of Comedy, Tragedy, and Fantasy.

Subgenres:

- Romance – features themes of forgiveness, redemption, and reunion.
- Tragicomedy – blends serious themes with comic resolution.
- Pastoral / Utopian Drama – idealized natural settings (island) and political allegory.
- Masque – contains masque-like scenes (Act IV) rich in spectacle and symbolism.

Inspiration:

Shakespeare likely drew from:

- True Accounts: The 1609 shipwreck of the Sea Venture on the island of Bermuda.
- Montaigne's Essay "Of Cannibals" – for ideas of noble savagery and colonial critique.
- Classical Sources: Virgil's Aeneid, Ovid's Metamorphoses, and travel literature of the New World.

Structure of the Play:

- 5-Act Structure (as per classical norms)
- Follows the unities of time, place, and action more closely than many of his other plays.
- Begins in medias res (in the middle of action).
- Use of prose and verse: Nobility speaks in blank verse (unrhymed iambic pentameter); low characters often use prose.

Composing Time:

- Written around 1610–1611, possibly his last solo play.

Publishing Year:

- First published in the First Folio of Shakespeare's works in 1623.

Literary References:

- Ovid's *Metamorphoses – for themes of transformation.
- Virgil's *Aeneid – echoes in the exile and magical control.
- The Bible – allusions to forgiveness, power, and divine justice.

Influence on Theatre:

- Early example of “meta-theatre”: Prospero, as a director-like figure, mirrors Shakespeare himself.
- Inspired Postcolonial interpretations (Caliban as the colonized).
- Frequently adapted into opera, ballet, films, and modern plays.
- Paved way for fantastical stagecraft—magic, spirits, music—on the Elizabethan stage.

FAMOUS LINES FROM THE TEMPEST

1. "We are such stuff as dreams are made on, and our little life is rounded with a sleep."
– Prospero, Act IV, Scene 1
A haunting reflection on the illusion of life — one of Shakespeare's most quoted lines.
2. "The rarer action is in virtue than in vengeance."
– Prospero, Act V, Scene 1
Forgiveness > revenge. Period.
3. "O brave new world that has such people in't!"
– Miranda, Act V, Scene 1
Naïve wonder or sarcastic shade? You decide.
4. "You taught me language, and my profit on't is, I know how to curse."
– Caliban, Act I, Scene 2
A raw jab at colonizers. Still hits hard.
5. "Hell is empty and all the devils are here."
– Ariel (reporting), Act I, Scene 2
Utter chaos. And it feels... eerily modern.
6. "This rough magic I here abjure."
– Prospero, Act V, Scene 1

A magician's mic drop. Also Shakespeare's goodbye to the stage.

7. "Full fathom five thy father lies; Of his bones are coral made..."
– Ariel, Act I, Scene 2
The most beautiful funeral song in literature.
8. "Be not afeard; the isle is full of noises, Sounds, and sweet airs, that give delight and hurt not."
– Caliban, Act III, Scene 2
A poetic side of Caliban no one sees coming.
9. "What's past is prologue."
– Antonio, Act II, Scene 1
History is just the opening act. Your move.
10. "Now my charms are all o'erthrown, and what strength I have's mine own..."
– Prospero (Epilogue)
A curtain call to both the play and the playwright.

Themes – The core of work

✚ Power and Control

- Prospero's rule over the island reflects the manipulation of power—through magic, knowledge, and forgiveness.

✚ Colonialism and Otherness

- Caliban, native to the island, represents the colonized subject—depicted both as savage and noble.

✚ Forgiveness and Redemption

- Prospero's journey is one of moving from vengeance to mercy—a Christian moral core.

✚ Illusion vs. Reality

- The magical elements blur the lines between what is real and what is artifice, echoing themes of theatre itself.

✚ Freedom and Servitude

- Ariel and Caliban both desire freedom from Prospero, highlighting different forms of bondage—spiritual and physical.

Symbols:

- The Tempest (Storm) – Symbol of upheaval and change.
- The Island – Utopian dream or colonial space, depending on interpretation.
- Prospero's Books – Symbol of knowledge, power, and magic. Also, metaphor for art and authority.
- Ariel – Represents spirit, air, and imagination.
- Caliban – Earthy, physical nature; symbol of colonized resistance.

Narrative Style:

- Dramatic Dialogue and Monologue
- Rich in imagery, metaphors, and symbolism
- Blank verse dominates; interspersed with songs, masques, and comic relief.

Title Taken From "Tempest" in Literature

1. Brave New World – Aldous Huxley

- Title Taken From: "Miranda's famous line"
"O brave new world that has such people in't!"
 (Act V, Scene 1)
- Explanation: In The Tempest, Miranda says this with innocence and wonder. Huxley, however, uses the line ironically to depict a future dystopia where people are emotionless, conditioned, and controlled by technology. It critiques modern civilization and warns about the loss of humanity.

2. Hag-Seed – Margaret Atwood

- Title Taken From: "Hag-seed" is a derogatory term Prospero uses for Caliban.
- Explanation: Atwood's novel is a modern retelling of *The Tempest set in a prison. The main character, Felix (a modern Prospero), stages The Tempest as a prison play to execute a personal revenge. It explores themes of justice, theatre, redemption, and the transformative power of art.

3. A Tempest – Aimé Césaire

- Title Taken From: A direct adaptation of Shakespeare's play, reframed in a postcolonial context.
- Explanation: Césaire, a Black Caribbean playwright, reimagines The Tempest with Caliban as a Black revolutionary and Prospero as a white European colonizer. The play focuses on race, colonization, and resistance, turning Shakespeare's magic island into a political battlefield.

4. Caliban's Hour – Tad Williams

- Title Taken From: Focuses on Caliban's narrative—his "hour" to speak.
- Explanation: This novel gives Caliban a voice. Set after the events of The Tempest, he tells his version of what happened to Miranda, giving a sympathetic, psychological depth to a character often labeled a monster. It critiques colonial oppression and rewrites the narrative from the perspective of the subjugated.

5. Prospero's Books – Peter Greenaway (film)

- Title Taken From: Prospero's magical books—the source of his power.
- Explanation: This highly stylized film retells The Tempest with a focus on art, knowledge, and control. Prospero performs all roles in the film, blurring the line between creator and creation, like Shakespeare himself. The books symbolize intellectual power, magic, and imagination.

6. This Thing of Darkness – Harry Thompson

- Title Taken From: Prospero's line from Act V
"This thing of darkness I acknowledge mine."

✚ Explanation: Though not a direct adaptation, the novel explores themes of exploration, race, and moral conflict, much like The Tempest. It's based on Darwin's voyage with Captain FitzRoy, drawing subtle parallels to Prospero-Caliban dynamics, and addressing colonial guilt and discovery.

Allusion Taken by Shakespeare

- Classical Allusions:

- Aeneas's journey, Circe, and Dido (Virgil's Aeneid)
- Ariel – name of a spirit from Hebrew mythology (means "lion of God")

- Biblical Allusions: Mercy, repentance, authority from divine right.
- Renaissance Humanism: Influence of Montaigne's essay "Of Cannibals" for Caliban's character.

"I am a professional soldier. I fight for pay—for the sake of fun."

Plot Summary

A raging storm at sea threatens the royal ship carrying Alonso, the King of Naples, along with his son Ferdinand, his brother Sebastian, the usurping Duke Antonio, and others, as they return from Alonso's daughter's wedding in Tunis. The courtiers and sailors panic, argue, and hurl insults as the storm intensifies and the ship appears doomed.

From a nearby island, Prospero, the former Duke of Milan, watches calmly with his daughter Miranda, who is disturbed by the storm and fears for the passengers. She suspects that Prospero's magical powers are behind the tempest and begs him to stop it. In response, Prospero begins to reveal their tragic backstory.

Twelve years earlier, Prospero was overthrown by his treacherous brother Antonio, who had the backing of Alonso. Prospero and the infant Miranda were cast out to sea and expected to die. However, they survived, landing on this island—thanks to the nobleman Gonzalo, who secretly stocked their boat with provisions and Prospero's books of magic. Now, Prospero reveals, fate has delivered his enemies to his shores, and he intends to take revenge.

Having put Miranda to sleep with a charm, Prospero summons Ariel, his magical spirit-servant who created the storm. Ariel reports that all passengers are safe but scattered across the island. He also reminds Prospero of his promise to grant him freedom, but Prospero rebukes him, reminding Ariel of how he rescued him from Sycorax, the island's former witch-ruler, who had imprisoned Ariel in a tree. Ariel apologizes and obeys. He becomes invisible to spy on the newcomers.

Prospero then awakens Miranda and calls forth his other servant, Caliban, Sycorax's brutish son, who now resents Prospero's control. Caliban curses his master and argues that the island rightfully belongs to him. He refuses to be grateful for having been taught language, as it only enables him to curse.

Meanwhile, Ariel guides Ferdinand, Alonso's son, to Prospero. When Miranda sees Ferdinand, it's love at first sight for both. Prospero, although inwardly pleased, pretends disapproval and imprisons Ferdinand, testing the sincerity of his love.

In another part of the island, Alonso, Gonzalo, Antonio, and Sebastian wake safely on shore. Alonso is grief-stricken, believing Ferdinand has drowned. As they rest, Ariel casts a magical sleep on Alonso and Gonzalo. Seizing the moment, Antonio tempts Sebastian to murder Alonso and seize the throne of Naples. Sebastian hesitates, but begins to agree—until Ariel awakens the sleepers just in time to foil the assassination.

Elsewhere, Caliban stumbles upon Stephano, the royal butler, and Trinculo, the jester. They ply him with liquor, and he, mistaking them for powerful gods, vows to serve them. Caliban plots with them to kill Prospero and seize the island. Ariel listens, invisible, and begins to sabotage their plan.

Back at Prospero's domain, Ferdinand continues his punishment of hard labor but remains cheerful and devoted. He and Miranda talk again, and declare their love. Prospero, watching in secret, is moved and gives his blessing to their future marriage.

Soon after, Antonio and Sebastian resume their plot against Alonso, but Ariel appears in the form of a harpy. He delivers a terrifying rebuke to them for their betrayal of Prospero, warning them that only repentance can save them. Alonso is shaken and remorseful. Antonio and Sebastian remain defiant.

Prospero then enchants and traps them all with his magic.

Back in his cave, Prospero celebrates the engagement of Miranda and Ferdinand with a grand magical performance—or masque—by spirits representing goddesses like Juno, Ceres, and Iris. They bestow blessings of love, happiness, and fertility. But in the middle of the joyous spectacle, Prospero remembers Caliban's plot and abruptly ends the masque. He and Ariel then set a trap for the would-be assassins. Stephano, Trinculo, and Caliban are lured and humiliated with flashy clothes, chased off by spirits in the form of hounds.

In the final act, Prospero, reflecting on the events and encouraged by Ariel, chooses to forgive rather than punish. He gives up his magic, dons his ducal garments, and confronts his enemies. Alonso repents and restores Prospero's dukedom. Ferdinand and Alonso are joyfully reunited, and Alonso wholeheartedly approves the marriage. Though Antonio remains silent, Prospero spares him and Sebastian, choosing virtue over vengeance.

He then exposes the drunken trio, including Caliban, who regrets having followed fools and acknowledges his own error.

Prospero sets Ariel free at last, and instructs him to prepare a safe voyage back to Naples. The play closes with Prospero's epilogue, a heartfelt farewell to magic, in which he asks the audience for applause to set him free—not only as a magician, but as a man.

Characters

MAJOR CHARACTERS

1. Prospero

The rightful Duke of Milan, overthrown and exiled by his brother Antonio, with the help of Alonso, the King of Naples. For the past 12 years, Prospero has lived in isolation on a remote island with his daughter Miranda.

During this time, he has become a powerful enchanter, mastering the island's magic and commanding both the spirit Ariel and the creature Caliban. Prospero is domineering and uses his powers to control events on the island—he manipulates others, including Miranda, to achieve his ends.

He is often seen as a stand-in for Shakespeare himself, like a playwright controlling the narrative and characters. Despite his immense power, Prospero ultimately chooses forgiveness over revenge, giving up his magic and reconciling with his enemies at the end of the play.

2. Ariel

A magical spirit and Prospero's loyal servant.

Ariel was imprisoned in a tree by the witch Sycorax, and later freed by Prospero, who now commands him in return for the promise of future freedom.

Ariel uses his powers to conjure the tempest, confuse the shipwrecked courtiers, and foil murder plots.

He takes delight in mischief, but also shows empathy—especially when he pleads with Prospero to forgive his enemies, an act that moves Prospero to mercy.

At the play's end, Prospero grants Ariel his freedom.

3. Caliban

The son of Sycorax, a witch who ruled the island before Prospero.

Caliban initially welcomed Prospero and Miranda but was later enslaved by Prospero after trying to violate Miranda.

Though crude and angry, Caliban is also capable of poetic language and deep feeling.

He resents Prospero and believes the island is rightfully his, and later conspires to kill Prospero with the help of Stephano and Trinculo.

His name is a near anagram of "cannibal," and he symbolically represents the colonized native.

Through Caliban, Shakespeare explores colonialism, power, and injustice.

4. Miranda

Prospero's young daughter, and the rightful princess of Milan.

Having grown up alone on the island, Miranda is innocent, compassionate, and obedient.

She is amazed to see other humans for the first time and falls in love with Ferdinand, whom she marries.

Her only anger in the play is directed at Caliban for his past attempt to assault her.

She represents purity, natural goodness, and is central to the play's theme of reconciliation.

5. Alonso

The King of Naples, and one of Prospero's former enemies.

He supported Antonio in the usurpation of Prospero but is now remorseful.

After the shipwreck, Alonso believes his son Ferdinand is dead, and his grief softens him.

By the end of the play, Alonso repents for his past mistakes and is reunited with Ferdinand, whose marriage to Miranda symbolizes peace between Milan and Naples.

6. Antonio

Prospero's ambitious younger brother, and the play's main human villain.

He usurped Prospero's dukedom with the help of Alonso and later encourages Sebastian to murder Alonso and seize the throne of Naples.

Cold, scheming, and power-hungry, Antonio never shows remorse for his betrayal and remains silent even when Prospero forgives him.

He represents treachery and unchecked ambition.

7. Gonzalo

A loyal advisor to Alonso.

Though he was ordered to exile Prospero and Miranda, Gonzalo ensured they had provisions, clothing, and Prospero's books.

He is optimistic, wise, and philosophical—often mocked by others but always noble and kind.

Gonzalo stands as a symbol of goodness, loyalty, and human decency.

8. Ferdinand

Alonso's son and heir, believed dead after the shipwreck.

Kind-hearted, noble, and respectful, he falls in love with Miranda at first sight.

Prospero tests him by imposing hard labour, which Ferdinand endures patiently.

Their love and marriage become the symbol of hope, new beginnings, and reconciliation.

9. Sebastian

Alonso's brother.

Encouraged by Antonio, Sebastian tries to kill Alonso to gain the crown.

Though he briefly hesitates, he ultimately chooses betrayal.

He never repents and, like Antonio, is left morally unchanged.

Sebastian represents moral weakness and political ambition.

10. Stephano

Alonso's butler, who spends most of the play drunk.

When Caliban offers him allegiance, he fantasizes about becoming "King of the island."

He joins Caliban's plot to kill Prospero and is tricked and mocked by Ariel's illusions.

Stephano's foolishness adds comic relief, but also highlights the corrupting influence of power, even on fools.

11. Trinculo

Alonso's court jester, and a companion to Stephano.

Like Stephano, he's comical, cowardly, and intoxicated throughout the play.

He mocks Caliban and joins the assassination plot, serving as part of the play's comic subplot.

His role emphasizes the theme that even lowly fools can fall victim to greed and delusion.

MINOR CHARACTERS*1. Boatswain

A crew member of the royal ship.

Appears in the first scene during the storm and asserts his authority over the panicking courtiers.

His blunt and commanding tone angers nobles like Antonio and Sebastian, but he successfully manages the ship and survives the tempest.

Though a minor character, he represents practical wisdom over noble arrogance.

2. Sycorax

A dead witch and mother of Caliban.

She ruled the island before Prospero's arrival and imprisoned Ariel in a tree for disobedience.

Though she never appears on stage, she plays a powerful off-stage role, representing cruelty, untamed power, and pre-Prospero colonization of the island. Prospero frequently compares himself to Sycorax to highlight his own "just" rule, though the contrast is debatable.

3. Adrian

A minor nobleman in King Alonso's court.

He appears with the royal party after the shipwreck and makes occasional comments, mostly humorous or supportive.

He adds to the courtly presence but has limited influence in the plot.

4. Francisco

Another minor lord in Alonso's entourage.

He defends Ferdinand's character and tries to comfort Alonso by suggesting that Ferdinand may still be alive.

He plays a small but sympathetic role, showing loyalty and optimism.

5. Iris

The Greek goddess of the rainbow.

Appears in the masque (wedding celebration) created by Prospero's magic to bless Ferdinand and Miranda.

She acts as a messenger, calling on the other goddesses and setting the stage for the divine blessings of the couple.

6. Ceres

The goddess of agriculture and harvest.

Appears in the masque to bless Miranda and Ferdinand with fertility, prosperity, and a bountiful future.

She represents nature, nourishment, and abundance.

7. Juno

The queen of the gods, wife of Jupiter.

She also appears in the masque and gives blessings of wealth, honor, and lasting marriage to the young couple.

Her presence, along with Iris and Ceres, adds to the masque's grandeur and underlines divine approval of the union.

Summary and Analysis

ACT 1 SCENE 1

A terrible storm tosses a ship at sea. The ship carries Alonso, the King of Naples, and assorted courtiers on the journey home from Alonso's daughter's wedding in Tunisia. The Boatswain of the ship shouts commands at the passengers to keep below deck to ensure their safety and because they are getting in the way of the sailors' work. When Gonzalo reminds the Boatswain to remember who is on the ship, the Boatswain insists that nature does not care that the ship holds a king and that, under such circumstances, his own authority must be respected: "What cares these roarers for the name of king? To cabin! Silence! Trouble us not."

Gonzalo, a counselor to the king, jokes that he's no longer afraid of drowning, because it seems to him that the Boatswain is destined to die by hanging rather than drowning.

Antonio and Sebastian are furious at the Boatswain for his audacity in ordering them around. They hurl insults at him, calling the Boatswain, among other things a "dog," "cur," "whoreson," and an "insolent noisemaker" (1.1.35-38).

The ship cracks. Sailors pray for their lives. Antonio and Sebastian run to be with King Alonso as the ship goes down, while Gonzalo prays for land, any land, to save him from drowning.

ACT 1 SCENE 2

Miranda and Prospero watch the tempest from the shore of an island. Miranda pities the seafarers, saying "O, I have suffered with those that I saw suffer!" Suspecting that this is the work of her magician father, she pleads with him to calm the waters.

Miranda's character is gentle, empathetic, and kind. She is aware of her father's great magical powers and always obeys him. Prospero reassures her that no harm has been done and says that it's time to tell Miranda about her past. He takes off his cloak, saying, "Lie there my art". Prospero then reveals to Miranda that he was once Duke of Milan and that Miranda was a princess.

Prospero explains how, while duke, he became wrapped up in reading his books, allowing his brother Antonio to handle the affairs of the state. Antonio proved a skilled politician and gained a great deal of power through his dealings, until he seemed to believe himself Duke of Milan.

Antonio persuaded Alonso, the King of Naples and a long-time enemy of Milan, to help him overthrow Prospero. To sway Alonso, Antonio promised that, as duke, he would pay an annual tribute to Naples and accept Alonso as the ultimate ruler of Milan.

Alonso and Antonio arranged for soldiers to kidnap Prospero and Miranda in the middle of the night. The soldiers hurried them aboard a fine ship, and then, several miles out to sea, cast them into a rickety boat. The pair survived only through the generosity of Gonzalo, an advisor to Alonso, who provided them with necessities like fresh water, clothing, blankets, and food, as well as Prospero's beloved books.

Miranda says that she would like to meet Gonzalo someday. She then asks Prospero why he created the storm. Prospero replies that circumstances have brought his enemies close to the island's shores. He feels that if he does not act now, he may never have a chance again. Prospero then puts a spell on Miranda so that she sleeps and asks no more questions.

Prospero summons his servant Ariel, who greets Prospero as his "great master," then gleefully describes how he created the illusion of the storm. Following Prospero's instructions, Ariel made sure that no one was injured and dispersed the courtiers throughout the island, leaving Alonso's son all alone. The sailors are in a deep sleep within the ship, which is in a hidden harbor along the shore. The rest of the fleet sailed on for Naples, believing the king dead.

Prospero thanks Ariel. Ariel reminds Prospero that he had promised to reduce Ariel's time in servitude if Ariel performed the tasks that Prospero gave him. Prospero angrily reminds Ariel how he rescued Ariel from imprisonment. Ariel had refused to do the cruel bidding of Sycorax, the witch who ruled the island before Prospero's arrival. Sycorax then imprisoned Ariel in a tree, and didn't free him before she died. Ariel might have been stuck in that tree forever if Prospero had not freed him. Ariel begs Prospero's pardon, and Prospero promises Ariel his freedom in two days' time. Prospero then instructs Ariel to make himself invisible to all but Prospero. Ariel exits.

Prospero awakens Miranda and, calling for his "poisonous slave," summons, Caliban, the malformed son of Sycorax. Caliban and Prospero immediately start trading curses. Caliban asserts his rightful claim to the island as Sycorax's son, and recalls how, when Prospero first came to the island "Thou strok'st me and made much of me; wouldst give me / Water with berries in't; and teach me how / To name the bigger light, and how the less ... and then I lov'd thee, / And show'd thee all the qualities o' th' isle, / The fresh springs, brinepits, barren place, and fertile". But then, Caliban says, Prospero made Caliban, who had been king of the island, his subject and servant.

Prospero angrily responds that he treated Caliban with "human care" and even let Caliban live in his own home. Yet, in response, Caliban tried to rape Miranda. Caliban replies, "O ho! Would't had been done."

Miranda angrily scolds Caliban, recalling how she tried to lift him out of savagery by teaching him to speak their language "When thou didst not, savage, / Know thine own meaning, but wouldst gabble like / A thing most brutish". Yet despite this gift of education, Miranda continues, Caliban remained innately vile and brutal. Caliban retorts, "You taught me language, and my profit on't is, I know how to curse". (Editor's note: some editions of The Tempest have Prospero, not Miranda, say the lines about teaching Caliban to speak).

Enraged, Prospero hurls new curses at Caliban and orders him to get to his chores. Caliban grudgingly obeys, knowing that Prospero's power is greater than his own, and exits.

Nearby, the invisible Ariel sings a haunting song to Ferdinand, Alonso's son, who has awakened to find himself alone on the island. The song's lyrics deceive Ferdinand into believing that his father drowned in the shipwreck: "Full fathom five thy father lies. / of his bones are coral made". Unseen, Prospero and Miranda watch Ferdinand approach. Miranda declares Ferdinand handsome. Ferdinand soon notices Miranda and, struck by her beauty, tells her of his troubles. She expresses pity for him, and they fall in love at first sight. Prospero, in an aside, admits that he is pleased by their attraction.

However, to test the depth of Ferdinand's love for Miranda, Prospero speaks sharply to Ferdinand and takes him into captivity as a servant. Miranda begs her father not to treat Ferdinand too harshly, but Prospero angrily silences her and leads Ferdinand away. For his part, Ferdinand says that the captivity and hard labor Prospero promises will be easy as long as he regularly gets to see Miranda.

ACT 2 SCENE 1

Elsewhere on the island, the other courtiers find themselves washed up on the island's shores. Alonso is despondent because he can't find Ferdinand, whom he believes to be dead. Gonzalo tries to comfort him by saying that they should be thankful that they survived, but Alonso is too sad to listen to him. Alonso also ignores Gonzalo's observation that it is strange how fresh their clothing seems. Meanwhile, off to one side, Antonio and Sebastian look on and mock Gonzalo's positive attitude.

Francisco, another lord, also tries to comfort Alonso. Sebastian, on the other hand, lays the blame for Ferdinand's death on Alonso, saying that it was his own fault for going against his advisors' counsel and permitting his daughter to marry an African. Gonzalo scolds Sebastian for his harsh words, and Antonio and Sebastian once more mock Gonzalo again.

Gonzalo continues talking and explains how he would govern such an island if he were king. He envisions people dwelling in a completely agrarian society, without leaders or language, where everyone lives in harmony, peace, and plenty. "All things in common nature should produce without sweat or endeavor," he says. He elaborates this utopian vision while Antonio and Sebastian continue their snide commentary. Alonso remains troubled and disinclined to hear Gonzalo's talk. Gonzalo then turns on Antonio and Sebastian, scolding them once again, this time for their mockery and cowardice.

Ariel enters, invisible, and plays music that makes Gonzalo and Alonso fall asleep. As they sleep, Antonio slyly presents a murder plot to Sebastian. Since Ferdinand is almost definitely dead, Antonio says, Alonso's death would make Sebastian King of Naples. Sebastian is drawn in, remembering how Antonio overthrew his own brother. He hesitates a bit, though, asking Antonio if his conscience bothers him for what he did to Prospero. Antonio dismisses the question.

Sebastian is convinced to go ahead with the plot, and Sebastian and Antonio draw their swords. Just then, Ariel enters again, and sings a soft warning. Gonzalo and Alonso awaken. Caught with their swords out, the two conspirators claim somewhat unconvincingly that they heard loud bellowing nearby and sought to protect their comrades from a beast they believed was nearby. Gonzalo and Alonso, unsettled, draw their swords and exit, followed by Ariel, who plans to tell Prospero of the plot he has foiled.

ACT 2 SCENE 2

Caliban enters, carrying wood. He delivers a monologue in which he curses Prospero and describes the many torments Prospero's spirits inflict on him. Just then, Trinculo, Alonso's jester, enters. Caliban mistakes him for one of Prospero's spirits here to punish him for doing his chores slowly. He lies down and hides under his cloak.

Trinculo, hearing thunder, fears another storm coming and looks for a place to hide. On the ground, he spots a brownish lump with legs (Caliban partially hidden by the cloak) and thinks it is a "strange fish" that he could perhaps bring back to civilization and sell as a curiosity. Upon further scrutiny, he believes that it is an islander that has been struck by a lightning bolt. Crawling under the cloak for shelter, he remarks, "Misery acquaints a man with strange bedfellows".

Stephano, the Alonso's butler, enters, drinking and singing very badly. Whether because of Stephano's singing or because Trinculo has crawled under his cloak, Caliban cries out, "Do not torment me! O!". Stephano hears the noise and notices a brown mass with a pair of legs sticking out on each end. He thinks it must be a two-headed, four-legged monster of some sort. He, too, considers capturing and selling this creature as a curiosity back home. He gives one head (Caliban's) a drink, hoping to tame the monster. Trinculo, meanwhile, recognizes Stephano's voice and calls out to him. Stephano pulls him out by the legs. The two embrace and share their stories about surviving the shipwreck.

Caliban, meanwhile, has never had wine before and gets immediately drunk. He thinks that the owners of such a marvelous liquid must be gods. Kneeling in worship, Caliban declares himself Stephano's subject. Stephano enjoys the admiration of the "monster" (as Trinculo repeatedly calls Caliban) and relishes the drunken Caliban's offer to kiss his feet.

Caliban volunteers to show them around the island and expresses a hope that Stephano might be able to deliver him from servitude to Prospero. Stephano, meanwhile, fantasizes about becoming ruler of what he believes is a deserted island, while Trinculo comments, in a series of asides, on the absurdity of the scene: "A most ridiculous monster, to make a wonder of a poor drunkard".

ACT 3 SCENE 1

Ferdinand enters, carrying a heavy log. Having been imprisoned and put to work by Prospero, he delivers a soliloquy in which he says that Miranda's love, the cause for which he labors, eases the difficulty of the task.

Miranda enters. Prospero follows behind, unseen. Miranda urges Ferdinand not to work so hard and offers to help him. He refuses her help and asks her name, which she tells him, remembering too late her father's instruction not to do so. Ferdinand says that she is the most perfect woman he has ever encountered, and she returns the compliment. They declare their love for one another, and Miranda suggests that they marry, saying "I am your wife, if you will marry me; if not, I'll die your maid". Ferdinand readily agrees. Looking on, Prospero blesses their love and secretly expresses his approval of the union.

ACT 3 SCENE 2

Caliban, Stephano, and Trinculo continue to get drunk. Stephano who now calls himself "Lord of the Island," commands Caliban to "Drink, servant monster, when I bid thee". Stephano declares that Caliban will be his lieutenant. When Trinculo, who is baffled by Caliban's worship of Stephano, mocks Caliban, Stephano threatens to have Trinculo hanged.

Ariel, invisible, enters just as Caliban begins to describe Prospero's ill treatment of him and to ask Stephano to avenge this wrong. Ariel calls out "Thou liest." But because he is invisible, the Caliban and Stephano thinks that it is Trinculo who has spoken. Stephano threatens Trinculo, who denies having said anything. When Ariel again shouts out "Thou liest," Stephano punches Trinculo.

Caliban continues to describe his plan to murder Prospero. He suggests several ways of killing Prospero, and it is clear that he has thought about this before: "Thou mayst brain him ... or with a log batter his skull, or paunch him with a stake, or cut his wezand with they knife". But it is vital, he says, for Stephano to seize Prospero's books, which are the source of his power. He entices Stephano by promising Miranda as a prize once the deed is done. Ariel listens in and makes plans to tell Prospero of the plot.

The three men begin to sing loudly in celebration but cannot recall the tune they want to sing. Ariel supplies it, throwing Stephano and Trinculo into a fright. Caliban reassures them, delivering a lyrical speech about the island's many curious and entrancing sounds. He says, "The Island is full of noises, sounds, and sweet airs that give delight and hurt not".

Stephano exults that he will soon be the lord of such a wonderful island "where I shall have my music for nothing". Ariel exits, still playing music, and the three men follow the bewitching sound.

ACT 3 SCENE 3

Alonso, Gonzalo, Antonio, and Sebastian enter. They are exhausted after having wandered the island in search of Ferdinand, whom Alonso sadly gives up for dead. Antonio and Sebastian secretly hope that Alonso's sadness and tiredness will give them the chance to murder him that evening.

Suddenly, strange music fills the air. Spirits enter, assemble a lavish banquet, and signal for the courtiers to partake. Prospero has also entered, but because of his magic is invisible. The men marvel at the strange sight of the spirits and banquet, but are unsure whether it is safe to eat. Gonzalo convinces them it will be safe by observing that explorers are always uncovering amazing things, and that this banquet must be one of those things.

Before any of them can eat, a clap of thunder sounds and Ariel appears in the form of a harpy. A flap of Ariel's wings makes the banquet vanish. Saying that he is an agent of Fate, Ariel condemns Alonso, Antonio, and Sebastian for overthrowing and exiling Prospero and Miranda. He says that the tempest was nature's tool for exacting revenge on Alonso by taking Ferdinand. Ariel adds that only sincere repentance can save the men's own lives. Ariel vanishes. Prospero, still invisible, applauds his spirits and states that his enemies are now under his control.

Alonso is bitter with remorse for the overthrow of Prospero, which he believes has caused the drowning of his son. He resolves to drown himself and runs off. Antonio and Sebastian declare that they will fight this new enemy, and also run off, but in pursuit of the spirits. Gonzalo fears what all three will do in their frenzied states of mind, and he orders the other courtiers to follow them and make sure none of them do anything too reckless.

ACT 4 SCENE 1

Prospero gives Ferdinand his blessing to marry Miranda, saying that Ferdinand has stood up well to Prospero's tests of his love. He threatens harsh consequences, however, if Ferdinand takes Miranda's virginity before an official wedding ceremony takes place. Ferdinand pledges to obey Prospero's wishes.

Prospero orders Ariel to gather his band of spirits to put on a celebratory masque, or performance, for the new couple. The masque begins when Iris, the Greek goddess of the rainbow, calls Ceres, the harvest goddess, to come and join her in celebrating the marriage. Juno, wife of Zeus and queen of the gods, appears next. Juno bestows her blessing on the couple, wishing them wealth and honor, while Ceres blesses them with wishes of prosperity. In awe, Ferdinand wishes he could stay on the island forever, with Miranda as his wife and Prospero as his father. Iris commands nymphs and harvest spirits to perform a country dance.

Suddenly, Prospero recalls Caliban, Stephano, and Trinculo's conspiracy to kill him. He calls an abrupt end to the festivities and the spirits vanish. Ferdinand is unsettled by Prospero's change in demeanor. Prospero reassures him, saying that an end must come to all things: "We are such stuff as dreams are made on; and our little life is rounded with a sleep". He instructs the lovers to go and rest in his cave without telling them any more details of what is going on.

Prospero summons Ariel, who reports that he has led the drunken conspirators on a torturous walk through briar patches and a stinking swamp. He describes their plot to steal Prospero's cloak and books before killing him. Prospero curses Caliban, calling him "a born devil, on whose nature nurture can never stick".

Prospero and Ariel set a trap for the conspirators: they set out some flashy opulent clothing on a clothesline near Prospero's dwelling. Then they stand back and watch as the wet threesome approaches.

Stephano and Trinculo complain about the smell and the loss of their wine in the swamp. Caliban tries to re-focus them on the murder. He points out Prospero's cave close by and reminds them of the ultimate reward, saying "Do that good mischief which may make this island thine own for ever, and I...for aye thy foot-licker". But to Caliban's dismay, Stephano and Trinculo notice the gaudy clothing and are distracted. They begin to try it on and make plans to steal it. Caliban becomes increasingly anxious, watching his plan unravel.

Ariel and Prospero send spirits shaped like hunting dogs to chase off the conspirators. Prospero orders Ariel to make sure that the dogs inflict pain and suffering on the threesome: "grind their joints with dry convulsions, shorten up their sinews with aged cramps".

Prospero says that all of his enemies are now under his control, and he promises Ariel that he will soon have his freedom.

ACT 5 SCENE 1

Prospero asks Ariel how Alonso and his men are doing. Ariel reports that he has confined them, spellbound, in a grove of trees. He describes how sorrowful and frightened they are, and adds that the man Prospero calls "the good old lord, Gonzalo," has tears streaming down his face. Ariel says that if Prospero "beheld them, your affections / would become tender". Prospero, moved by the human-like compassion of the spirit, pledges to release his hold over them, saying, "The rarer action is in virtue, than in vengeance". He sends Ariel to bring the men to appear before him.

Alone on stage, Prospero invokes the various spirits who have aided him, describing the many incredible feats he has accomplished with his magic—"graves at my command have waked their sleepers, oped, and let 'em forth"—and says that after performing this last act he will give up his powers, breaking his staff and drowning his book of magic.

Ariel leads the courtiers onto the stage, still spellbound by Prospero's charm. Prospero addresses them—praising Gonzalo for his goodness and loyalty and scolding Alonso, Sebastian, and Antonio for their cruelty, treachery, and greed—and then forgives them. Noting that the spell is lifting, Prospero has Ariel bring him his old clothing so that the courtiers will see him as the Duke of Milan when they come out of their spell. Then, he orders Ariel to go fetch the Boatswain and mariners.

Prospero releases Alonso and his men from the spell. Alonso, shocked and confused at seeing Prospero, immediately begs Prospero's pardon and relinquishes his claim to Milan. Prospero then embraces Gonzalo, whom he calls "noble friend...whose honor cannot be measured or confined".

Prospero next addresses Antonio and Sebastian, condemning them for overthrowing and exiling him and for plotting against Alonso. He goes on, however, to forgive them. Antonio and Sebastian do not respond, and are virtually silent for the rest of the play.

Alonso laments the death of Ferdinand. Prospero responds that he, too, has "lost" a child. Alonso assumes that Miranda has also died. Prospero invites Alonso to look into his cell, however, and reveals Ferdinand and Miranda sitting at a table playing chess. Ferdinand and Alonso rejoice to find each other alive.

Miranda marvels at the handsome men arrayed before her, saying, "How beauteous mankind is! O brave new world that has such people in't!" Prospero replies, "Tis new to thee". Ferdinand tells his father of his recent marriage to Miranda, and Alonso gives his blessing.

Gonzalo observes that this voyage has served to unite people with each other and with their true selves. He says, "O rejoice beyond a common joy...in one voyage...Ferdinand...found a wife where he himself was lost; Prospero, his dukedom, in a poor isle, and all of us ourselves, when no man was his own".

Ariel enters with the mariners. The Boatswain reports that the sailors awakened to find the ship miraculously restored to perfect condition. Next, Prospero asks Ariel to release Caliban, Stephano, and Trinculo from their spell and bring them forward in their stolen absurd clothes. Prospero relates how the threesome has plotted against him, and he asks the courtiers if they recognize Stephano and Trinculo. Of Caliban, he says, "This thing of darkness, I acknowledge mine".

The courtiers and Prospero mock Stephano and Trinculo for their drunken state and foiled ambitions. Prospero orders Caliban to take the two men to his cell and prepare it for the guests, saying, "As you look to have my pardon, trim it handsomely". Subservient again, Caliban complies, saying "What a thrice-double ass was I to take this drunkard for a god and worship this dull fool!"

Prospero invites Alonso and his court to spend the night in his cell, where he promises to tell the story of his time on the island. In the morning, he says, they will all return to Naples, where Miranda and Ferdinand will be married. From there, Prospero says, he will return to Milan "where every third thought shall be my grave".

Prospero gives Ariel the final task of ensuring the ship a safe, speedy voyage back to Italy, then grants Ariel his freedom.

EPILOGUE

Everyone exits except for Prospero, who speaks an epilogue to the audience. He begins, "Now my charms are all o'erthrown, and what strength I have's mine own—which is most faint" (epilogue.1-3). He asks the audience to set him free by applauding for him, saying "But release me from my bands with the help of your good hands" and "As you from crimes would pardoned be, let your indulgence set me free" (epilogue.9-10, 19-20). Prospero exits the stage.

Introduction – Robert Frost

1. Lifespan, Birth/Death Details &amp; Nationality

- Full Name: Robert Lee Frost
- Born: 26 March 1874, San Francisco, California, USA
- Died: 29 January 1963, Boston, Massachusetts, USA
- Nationality: American

2. Contemporaries (with Detail)

- Wallace Stevens: Fellow modernist poet; both emphasized personal experience but with contrasting styles.
- Ezra Pound: Supported Frost's early work but moved toward Imagism, unlike Frost's traditional meters.
- T.S. Eliot: Contemporary modernist, often seen as Frost's intellectual opposite; Frost was more rural, Eliot urban.
- Carl Sandburg: Another poet of the American experience; both explored everyday speech and rural life.
- Edward Thomas: British poet and close friend; Frost influenced Thomas to take up poetry. Their bond inspired "The Road Not Taken."
- Amy Lowell: Prominent female poet of the time; a rival in poetic style and publication.
- W.H. Auden: Later 20th-century figure; admired Frost's control over form and tone.

3. Titles (All Known As) – Awards

- Known As:
  - "Poet of New England"
  - "Voice of the American Everyman"
  - "Master of Rural Realism"
- Titles and Recognition:
  - Pulitzer Prize (4 times): 1924, 1931, 1937, 1943
  - Poet Laureate Consultant in Poetry to the Library of Congress (1958–59)
  - Congressional Gold Medal (1960)

- Recited at JFK's Inauguration (1961): First poet to do so

4. Key Themes in His Works

- Isolation and individualism in the face of society
- The tension between rural simplicity and emotional complexity
- Nature as both beautiful and indifferent
- Choices and their consequences (symbolism of roads, paths, forks)
- Subtle psychological depth beneath surface simplicity
- Conflict between modern life and traditional values
- Irony, doubt, and philosophical ambiguity in everyday speech

5. Family Background

- Father: William Prescott Frost Jr. – a journalist and politician
- Mother: Isabelle Moodie Frost – a teacher of Scottish descent
- Tragedy: Father died of tuberculosis when Frost was 11
- Siblings: One sister, Jeanie
- Marriage: Married Elinor Miriam White in 1895; she was his inspiration and intellectual equal
- Children: Six children, though several died young or struggled with illness

6. Education

- Attended Dartmouth College (1892) – did not complete
- Later attended Harvard University (1897–1899) – left before earning a degree
- Primarily self-educated through reading and experience
- Gained literary reputation not through academia but through resilience and craftsmanship

7. Important Life Events

- 1894: First published poem "My Butterfly: An Elegy"
- 1912–1915: Moved to England; published A Boy's Will (1913) and North of Boston (1914)
- 1915: Returned to the U.S. as a respected poet
- 1920s–30s: Became America's leading poet
- 1938: Wife Elinor died; personal grief intensified
- 1961: Recited "The Gift Outright" at JFK's inauguration
- 1963: Died of complications after prostate surgery

8. Criticism – By & Against Him

- Praise:
  - Admired for clarity, accessible language, depth beneath simplicity
  - T.S. Eliot: Called Frost "the most eminent, the most distinguished Anglo-American poet"
  - Randall Jarrell: Celebrated his psychological and moral subtlety
- Criticism:
  - Some accused him of being too traditional or emotionally detached
  - Viewed as "folksy" by early critics—now seen as deeply ironic
  - Conflicted public image: warm on stage, personally cold in relationships

9. Other Important Points

- Refused to align with Modernist movement despite being contemporary
- Used blank verse and conversational rhythm masterfully
- Advocated for clarity in poetry; resisted obscurity
- Blended 19th-century form with 20th-century tension
- Spoke at major universities but lived most of his life in rural settings (New Hampshire, Vermont)
- Work is deceptively simple; rich in symbolism, irony, and ambiguity

10. One of His Most Famous Lines

"Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference."
(The Road Not Taken, 1916)

11. Major Works of Robert Frost - Chronologically with Notes

Year	Title	Notes
1913	A Boy's Will	First published book; themes of youth, nature, longing
1914	North of Boston	Breakthrough work; includes "Mending Wall", "Death of the Hired Man"
1916	Mountain Interval	Contains "The Road Not Taken", "Birches", "Out, Out—"
1923	New Hampshire	Pulitzer Prize; includes "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening"

1947	Steeple Bush	War-time poems, meditative in tone
1962	In the Clearing	Final collection; includes "Kitty Hawk" and JFK inauguration poem

12. Additional Notes

- Frost is the only poet to win four Pulitzer Prizes
- Believed in sound of sense: sentence rhythm that carries meaning before words are understood
- Viewed poetry as a momentary stay against confusion
- His work is often misread as purely pastoral—beneath lies emotional and philosophical tension
- Quoted and studied globally in classrooms, contests, and academic essays

13. Renowned Author Status

- One of America's national poetic voices
- Required reading in U.S. and international English literature syllabi
- Memorialized in statues, libraries, stamps, and the Robert Frost Farm (New Hampshire)
- Revered as a traditional innovator: formal but profound
- Legacy: Gave American poetry a distinct voice rooted in everyday speech and emotional precision

Topic – After Apple-Picking

VVIP – KEY POINTS*Full Title & Alternate Name

- Title: After Apple-Picking
- Alternate Title: None officially, though often referred to as “Frost’s Apple Harvest Poem” in critical circles
- A renowned lyric that blurs the line between rural labor and existential musing

Genre

- Primary Genre: Lyric Poetry
- Form: Narrative Lyric with meditative undertones
- Mood: Reflective, drowsy, and existential

Subgenres

- Pastoral Lyric
- Modern American Allegory
- Dream-Poem / Sleep Poem
- Philosophical Reflection
- Spiritual Weariness Poem

Structure of the Poem

- Total Lines: 42 (free-flowing, not strictly formal)
- Meter: Primarily iambic pentameter, with irregular deviations (to evoke drowsiness and dream-state)

- Rhyme Scheme: Varies—loose rhyme with no strict pattern (mimics drifting thought)
- Notable Structural Features:
  - Begins mid-thought (“My long two-pointed ladder’s sticking through a tree”)
  - Shifts between reality and dream-like reverie
  - Ambiguous conclusion—sleep or death?

Setting & Speaker

- Temporal Setting: Late autumn; end of apple-picking season
- Spatial Setting: A rural New England orchard
- Speaker: A weary apple-picker—possibly Frost’s symbolic voice—caught between physical fatigue and spiritual reflection
- Dreamlike Quality: The setting becomes increasingly surreal, blending waking and sleep states

Composing Time

- Composed: Around 1913–1914
- Published: 1915 in North of Boston
- Written During: Frost’s early American period, reflecting agrarian life and deeper psychological themes

Publishing Year

- First Published: 1915
- In the Collection: North of Boston
- Widely Anthologized: Featured in discussions on modern poetry, American realism, and spiritual metaphors in labor

Inspiration

- Inspired by:
  - Frost’s own life on his New Hampshire farm
  - Seasonal labor and fatigue as metaphors for life and mortality
  - The tension between physical exhaustion and metaphysical longing
  - The blurred boundary between sleep and death, reality and dream

Literary References & ContrastsAllusions:

- Biblical echo of Eden and harvest motifs
- Echoes of classical myths—Orpheus, Persephone (linked with sleep/death)
- Parallels to Romantic nature introspection, yet with American pragmatism

Contrasts:

- Physical Labor vs. Spiritual Contemplation

Themes – The core of work

✚ Labor &amp; Weariness

- Physical toil leads to spiritual fatigue
- Harvest represents the culmination of effort, but also emptiness

✚ Consciousness &amp; Dream

- Transition from waking thought to drifting dream
- The surreal tone evokes liminality—between life and death

✚ Time, Seasons, &amp; Mortality

- Autumn signifies the close of life's cycle
- Apples = achievements and burdens
- Sleep = symbol of both rest and death

✚ Nature &amp; Spiritual Reflection

- Nature's fruitfulness contrasts with the speaker's detachment
- The natural world is both fulfilling and alienating

Symbolism

Symbol	Activity	Meaning
Ladder	Apple-picking, reaching upward	Ambition, life's journey, spiritual striving
Apples	Harvesting fruit	Life's tasks, choices, regrets
Barrel (not filled)	Incomplete harvest	Unfinished goals or dissatisfaction
Sleep	Coming over the speaker	Death or escape from labor and thought

Winter Sleep	Seasonal closing	Hibernation, death, rest from life's burdens
Dream-State Vision	Speaker's altered consciousness	Subconscious reflection, psychological unrest

Narrative & Tone

- Perspective: First-person, intimate and confessional
- Language Style: Simple diction with deep metaphoric undercurrents
- Tone Shifts:
  - Begins: Reflective and sensory-rich
  - Midway: Drowsy and dreamlike
  - Ends: Ambiguous, existential, resigned

Overall Tone

- Meditative and melancholic
- Deeply introspective, fatigued yet lyrical
- Haunted by the burdens of a meaningful but tiring life
- Acceptance without resolution—classic Frostian ambiguity

Summary of the poem

The poem begins with the speaker describing how he has been apple-picking all day, using a long two-pointed ladder that reaches toward the sky. As the harvest comes to an end, he is overwhelmed by physical exhaustion and a strange mental fog, as if on the edge of falling asleep—but this is no ordinary sleep. His senses are blurred, and reality seems to dissolve into a dreamlike state.

He recalls the sight, smell, and feel of the apples, but instead of satisfaction, he is filled with a sense of weariness and even regret. He has picked many apples, but not all. Some have dropped, some are left behind, and some barrels are still unfilled. These details become symbolic of the incompleteness of life's work—no matter how much we achieve, something always feels unfinished.

As the poem progresses, the speaker reflects not just on the labor he's done but on the meaning of that labor, hinting at deeper philosophical and existential questions. He wonders whether the sleep he is slipping into is simply rest or something more permanent—perhaps death. The speaker compares his state to "winter sleep," which could mean hibernation, deep rest, or a metaphor for the end of life.

He mentions dreams he has had about apples and the pressure of picking, suggesting that even in rest, the burdens of his work and life follow him. He ends the poem in ambiguity, unsure whether the sleep that awaits him will be refreshing or eternal: "One can see what will trouble / This sleep of mine, whatever sleep it is."

Original Text of the Poem

After Apple-Picking By Robert Frost

My long two-pointed ladder's sticking through a tree
Toward heaven still,
And there's a barrel that I didn't fill
Beside it, and there may be two or three
Apples I didn't pick upon some bough.
But I am done with apple-picking now.
Essence of winter sleep is on the night,
The scent of apples: I am drowsing off.
I cannot rub the strangeness from my sight
I got from looking through a pane of glass
I skimmed this morning from the drinking trough
And held against the world of hoary grass.
It melted, and I let it fall and break.
But I was well
Upon my way to sleep before it fell,
And I could tell
What form my dreaming was about to take.
Magnified apples appear and disappear,
Stem end and blossom end,
And every fleck of russet showing clear.
My instep arch not only keeps the ache,
It keeps the pressure of a ladder-round.
I feel the ladder sway as the boughs bend.
And I keep hearing from the cellar bin
The rumbling sound
Of load on load of apples coming in.

For I have had too much
 Of apple-picking: I am overtired
 Of the great harvest I myself desired.
 There were ten thousand thousand fruit to touch,
 Cherish in hand, lift down, and not let fall.
 For all
 That struck the earth,
 No matter if not bruised or spiked with stubble,
 Went surely to the cider-apple heap
 As of no worth.
 One can see what will trouble
 This sleep of mine, whatever sleep it is.
 Were he not gone,
 The woodchuck could say whether it's like his
 Long sleep, as I describe its coming on,
 Or just some human sleep.

Stanza wise Explanation

PART - 1

Line 1: "My long two-pointed ladder's sticking through a tree"

- Literal Meaning: The speaker's ladder is still propped in the apple tree.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The ladder represents life's efforts, ambitions, or even a connection between earth and heaven (spiritual quest).

Poetic Devices:

- Imagery: "Two-pointed ladder" is visual and concrete.
- Symbolism: Ladder as striving or life's work.

Line 2: "Toward heaven still,"

- Literal Meaning: The ladder points upward toward the sky.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Suggests aspiration or a longing for transcendence; "heaven" hints at death or spiritual elevation.

Poetic Devices:

- Enjambment: Flows directly from previous line.

- Symbolism: "Heaven" as both spiritual goal and the afterlife.

Line 3: "And there's a barrel that I didn't fill"

- Literal Meaning: He left one apple barrel unfilled.
- Symbolic Interpretation: A metaphor for incomplete goals, unfulfilled desires, or the inevitability of imperfection.

Poetic Devices:

- Symbolism: The empty barrel = unfinished work.
- Tone: Regretful and tired.

Line 4: "Beside it, and there may be two or three"

- Literal Meaning: A few apples remain on the tree.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Even at life's end, some potential remains unused or untouched.

Poetic Devices:

- Understatement: "Two or three" downplays what's been left.
- Imagery: Emphasizes incompleteness.

Line 5: "Apples I didn't pick upon some bough."

- Literal Meaning: Some apples were left unpicked on branches.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Not all opportunities are seized; we must accept the limitations of human effort.

Poetic Devices:

- Symbolism: Apples = chances, burdens, achievements.

Line 6: "But I am done with apple-picking now."

- Literal Meaning: He is finished with his work.

- Symbolic Interpretation: Signals resignation, closure—possibly even death or life's final stage.

Poetic Devices:

- Tone: Final, resolved.
- Diction: "Done" carries deep emotional fatigue.

Line 7: "Essence of winter sleep is on the night,"

- Literal Meaning: The night has the feel of deep winter sleep.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Hints at death (eternal rest) or hibernation—a pause in life's cycle.

Poetic Devices:

- Metaphor: "Essence of winter sleep" = looming death.
- Seasonal symbolism: Winter = life's end.

Line 8: "The scent of apples: I am drowsing off."

- Literal Meaning: He smells apples and feels sleepy.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The sensory world draws him toward dream or death.

Poetic Devices:

- Olfactory Imagery: "Scent of apples."
- Hypnotic tone: Enhances dreamlike mood.

Part - 1 Explanation:

This stanza introduces the speaker's setting and mood. The ladder reaching "toward heaven" symbolizes ambition or spiritual striving. The barrel not filled and apples left unpicked reveal a sense of incompleteness or regrets. The speaker feels tired, with the night evoking the deep rest of winter sleep, hinting at a metaphorical or literal approaching end. The scent of apples triggers drowsiness and transition from wakefulness to sleep/dream, setting the tone of reflection and impending rest.

PART - 2*Line 9: "I cannot rub the strangeness from my sight"

- Literal Meaning: His vision feels odd and he can't fix it.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Blurred boundary between reality and dream—possibly a brush with death or spiritual insight.

Poetic Devices:

- Symbolism: "Strangeness" = altered consciousness.
- Sensory disorientation: Reinforces transition to sleep/death.

Line 10: "I got from looking through a pane of glass"

- Literal Meaning: He looked through a sheet of ice.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Distorted vision reflects disconnection from normal life—perception altered by fatigue or nearing death.

Poetic Devices:

- Visual metaphor: Life seen through a fragile, shifting lens.

Line 11: "I skimmed this morning from the drinking trough"

- Literal Meaning: He had taken the glass (ice) from a water trough.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Daily, mundane action becomes a symbol of how we glimpse the world—through cold, distorting layers.

Poetic Devices:

- Everyday imagery: Grounds the surreal in realism.

Line 12: "And held against the world of hoary grass."

- Literal Meaning: He held the ice up and saw frosty grass through it.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Suggests a filtered, fleeting perception of nature—age and decay hinted in “hoary.”

Poetic Devices:

- Metaphor: “Hoary” = old, wintry.
- Sensory layering: Sight through cold.

Line 13: “It melted, and I let it fall and break.”

- Literal Meaning: The ice melted and dropped.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The transience of life, perception, and moments—what we see doesn’t last.

Poetic Devices:

- Symbolism: Ice = fragile, temporary clarity.

Line 14: “But I was well upon my way to sleep before it fell,”

- Literal Meaning: He was already sleepy before the ice dropped.
- Symbolic Interpretation: He is slipping deeper into a non-waking state—symbolic of nearing death.

Poetic Devices:

- Enjambment: Flow mimics drowsiness.

Line 15: “And I could tell”

- Literal Meaning: The speaker could sense what kind of dream he was entering.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The line hints at semi-conscious awareness—hovering between reality and dream, life and death.

Poetic Devices:

- Tone: Hypnotic, uncertain
- Enjambment: Continues into the next thought seamlessly

Line 16: “What form my dreaming was about to take.”

- Literal Meaning: He knew the kind of dream he would have.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Suggests a prophetic vision—possibly of judgment, regret, or life flashing before his eyes.

Poetic Devices:

- Foreshadowing: The dream will trouble his sleep
- Tone: Meditative

Part - 2 Explanation:

The speaker describes a surreal experience caused by looking through a pane of ice, creating a distorted vision of the world. This introduces the theme of blurred boundaries between waking and sleeping, life and death. The fragile ice melting and breaking symbolizes the fragile, transient nature of life and perception. The imagery of frost (“hoary grass”) further hints at the coldness of approaching death or the end of a cycle.

PART - 3*Line 17: “Magnified apples appear and disappear,”

- Literal Meaning: He sees enlarged apples drifting in and out of his vision.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The apples symbolize life’s moments—achievements and burdens—fading in the haze of memory or mortality.

Poetic Devices:

- Visual Imagery: “Magnified apples”
- Repetition (appear/disappear): Emphasizes transience

Line 18: “Stem end and blossom end,”

- Literal Meaning: He sees every detail of the apples—top to bottom.

- Symbolic Interpretation: Suggests completeness of experience or obsessive attention to life's details, even in dream or death.

Poetic Devices:

- Synecdoche: Parts of apples represent the whole experience
- Precision: Reflects mental fatigue

Line 19: "And every fleck of russet showing clear."

- Literal Meaning: He notices every speck of reddish-brown on the apples.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Over-awareness, perfectionism, or an inability to let go of life's smallest imperfections.

Poetic Devices:

- Visual Detail: Enhances sensory overload
- Color Imagery: "Russet" evokes autumn/decay

Line 20: "My instep arch not only keeps the ache,"

- Literal Meaning: His foot still aches from the ladder's rungs.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Physical toil becomes embedded in the body—labor leaves lasting pain, like life's burdens on the soul.

Poetic Devices:

- Metonymy: Instep = physical memory
- Sensory Detail: Pain as metaphor for weariness

Line 21: "It keeps the pressure of a ladder-round."

- Literal Meaning: He still feels the pressure from where the ladder rested on his foot.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Even in rest (or death), the imprint of hard work remains.

Poetic Devices:

- Symbolism: "Ladder-round" = the climb of life, ambition
- Tactile Imagery

Line 22: "I feel the ladder sway as the boughs bend."

- Literal Meaning: He remembers the unsteady feeling of working in the tree.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Suggests instability of life, danger in ambition, or the unpredictability of memory.

Poetic Devices:

- Kinesthetic Imagery: Movement and imbalance
- Symbolism: "Sway" = life's unpredictability

Line 23: "And I keep hearing from the cellar bin"

- Literal Meaning: He hears apples being dropped in the storage bin.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Echoes of labor continue even in rest—mental echo of unfinished business.

Poetic Devices:

- Auditory Imagery
- Symbolic Echo: Past work haunts the present

Line 24: "The rumbling sound"

- Literal Meaning: The noise of apples piling up.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Possibly a reminder of life's cumulative pressures, consequences, or final reckoning.

Poetic Devices:

- Onomatopoeia: "Rumbling" evokes heaviness
- Sound = memory motif

Line 25: "Of load on load of apples coming in."

- Literal Meaning: Apples being brought in repeatedly.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Life's responsibilities are endless; there's never true rest until the end.

Poetic Devices:

- Repetition: "Load on load" = relentlessness
- Symbolism: Apples = duties or decisions

Line 26: "For I have had too much"

- Literal Meaning: He feels overwhelmed.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Not just by labor, but by life itself—emotional exhaustion.

Poetic Devices:

- Tone: Fatigued
- Syntax: Short clause adds impact

Part - 3 Explanation:

The speaker drifts closer to sleep or death, reflecting on vivid dreams filled with magnified apples — symbolic of his life's work and experiences. The physical ache and pressure represent the weariness from labor and the burdens of life. The swaying ladder suggests instability and change, while the rumbling from the cellar hints at memories or accumulated deeds still "coming in." This stanza blends physical fatigue with spiritual reflection.

PART - 4*Line 27: "Of apple-picking: I am overtired"

- Literal Meaning: He's exhausted from the harvest.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Burnout from a lifetime of effort, physical or spiritual.

Poetic Devices:

- Alliteration: "Picking... overtired"

- Word choice: "Overtired" = deeper than just sleepy

Line 28: "Of the great harvest I myself desired."

- Literal Meaning: He once wanted this big harvest, but now it has drained him.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The irony of ambition—what we desire may burden or even destroy us.

Poetic Devices:

- Irony: Dream becomes fatigue
- Theme Reinforcement: Human striving

Line 29: "There were ten thousand thousand fruit to touch,"

- Literal Meaning: He had an enormous number of apples to pick.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The overwhelming scale of life's responsibilities, ambitions, or choices—perhaps exaggerated for effect.

Poetic Devices:

- Hyperbole: "Ten thousand thousand" = exaggerated quantity
- Symbolism: Apples = tasks, experiences, burdens

Line 30: "Cherish in hand, lift down, and not let fall."

- Literal Meaning: Each apple had to be picked with care to avoid damage.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The care required in life's choices and responsibilities—fear of failure or regret if anything goes wrong.

Poetic Devices:

- Alliteration: "lift... let... fall"
- Enjambment: Adds motion, like the picking action

Line 31: "For all"

- Literal Meaning: A transitional phrase, leading into a conclusion.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The beginning of the speaker's reflection on consequences or what became of fallen fruit.

Poetic Devices:

- Caesura: Pause creates anticipation
- Shift: Tone begins to reflect on failure

Line 32: "That struck the earth,"

- Literal Meaning: Apples that fell to the ground.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Life's failures or lost opportunities—once dropped, they can't be redeemed.

Poetic Devices:

- Symbolism: Earth = finality, loss
- Visual Imagery: Harsh contrast to "cherish"

Line 33: "No matter if not bruised or spiked with stubble,"

- Literal Meaning: Even undamaged apples were discarded if they touched the ground.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Society's harsh standards—what seems perfect may still be judged as "unworthy." A comment on value and rejection.

Poetic Devices:

- Contrast: Inner worth vs. external flaw
- Irony: Even unbruised fruit is wasted

Line 34: "Went surely to the cider-apple heap"

- Literal Meaning: Dropped apples are used only for cider, not fresh eating.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Downgraded potential; relegation to lesser use = lost human potential or misdirected efforts.

Poetic Devices:

- Metaphor: "Cider-apple heap" = life's cast-offs
- Tone: Resigned, bitter

Line 35: "As of no worth."

- Literal Meaning: These apples are considered worthless for market.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Commentary on utilitarian judgment—how easily we discard what doesn't meet strict standards.

Poetic Devices:

- Diction: "No worth" = absolute rejection
- Tone: Disillusioned

Line 36: "One can see what will trouble"

- Literal Meaning: The speaker predicts what will haunt his sleep.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The burdens of regret, lost value, and unfulfilled perfection will follow him into sleep—or death.

Poetic Devices:

- Foreshadowing
- Tone: Uneasy, prophetic

Part - 4 Explanation:

Here the speaker admits to being overworked and tired from pursuing his ambitions—his "great harvest." The endless number of apples symbolize countless opportunities or responsibilities. Despite careful effort ("cherish in hand"), some fruits inevitably fall and are discarded as worthless, paralleling how life's failures or imperfections are often rejected. This stanza explores the tension between desire and exhaustion, success and failure.

PART - 5*Line 37: "This sleep of mine, whatever sleep it is."

- Literal Meaning: He's unsure what kind of sleep he's falling into.

- Symbolic Interpretation: Ambiguous blend of sleep, dream, and death. The speaker is uncertain if he's resting or dying.

Poetic Devices:

- Repetition: "Sleep" echoes throughout
- Ambiguity: Adds philosophical depth

Line 38: "Were he not gone,"

- Literal Meaning: If the woodchuck were still around...
- Symbolic Interpretation: A reference to nature's cycle—hibernation as metaphor for seasonal rest or spiritual renewal.

Poetic Devices:

- Conditional mood: Sets up symbolic contrast
- Allusion: Woodchuck = natural world's rhythms

Line 39: "The woodchuck could say whether it's like his"

- Literal Meaning: The woodchuck would know if this is like his winter sleep.
- Symbolic Interpretation: The speaker wonders if his "sleep" is mere rest like an animal's—or something eternal like death.

Poetic Devices:

- Personification: Woodchuck as wise figure
- Contrast: Natural sleep vs. human uncertainty

Line 40: "Long sleep, as I describe its coming on,"

- Literal Meaning: The speaker compares his sleep to a deep, long one.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Further ambiguity between literal sleep and death. The "long sleep" becomes a euphemism for dying.

Poetic Devices:

- Euphemism: "Long sleep" = death
- Tone: Accepting, resigned

Line 41: "Or just some human sleep."

- Literal Meaning: Or maybe he's just going to bed.
- Symbolic Interpretation: Final return to ambiguity—could be literal sleep, could be symbolic death. Frost leaves it unresolved.

Poetic Devices:

- Paradox: Sleep that is ordinary yet profound
- Irony: Simple conclusion after deep meditation

Part - 5 Explanation:

The speaker anticipates a troubled sleep, unsure if it is ordinary sleep or death. The reference to the woodchuck—known for its long hibernation—serves as a natural metaphor for the ambiguity between temporary sleep and permanent rest. The stanza conveys uncertainty and the liminal space between life and death, emphasizing the mysterious nature of the speaker's condition.
